

ABSTRACT

Design information representing an electrical circuit is received and an electrical circuit condition requiring test is identified. A design verification test is determined, and evaluated for 5 effectiveness in exercising the identified electrical circuit condition. Electrical circuit conditions include faults such as speed paths, races, coupling events, noise events, and voltage and temperature sensitivities.